Distance and Sympathy Still Three Score and Ten Valuable Railroads Gulls Help Farmers

Distance kills sympathy. Ten million dead on the planet Mars. If there be any inhabitants there to die, would interest us very mildly. News that a next door neighbor has died is more important than today's dreadful news of 1000 killed by the drought in Central China. We tell ourselves that we are sorry for those inhabitants of Shensi Province, whose lands, formerly fertile, have had no rain since 1928, and whose suffering is made worse by outbreaks of cannibalism and attacks by wolves and bandits.

We may at least learn to take our own troubles less seriously when we read such news.

The Government "Research Committee on Social Trends" tells you that babies, children and younger adults live longer now than they used to live. But their elders' length of life is about the same. When the human machine reaches the Biblical three score and ten, it usually breaks down. But there is comfort for the three score and ten army that was not known in ancient days when eye glasses and false teeth were unknown.

Priam was probably not more than fifty, probably younger, when he went to beg Achilles for the body of his son Hector. He suggested to Achilles that he might also have a father "on the hateful road of old age." That age came early then, when there were no false teeth, or spectacles, no doctors to regulate blood pressure. Now a man of Priam's age might be on the pleasant road to St. Moritz or Reno.

The Interstate Commerce Commission says United States railroads are worth twenty-six billion ninety-one million dollars.

They will be worth more than that to their owners, when their invaluable, nonstop rights of way are fully used by light vehicles, going 185 to 190 miles an hour, at less than half the present fares.

The modern Pullman car, weighing 180,000 pounds, or more, now carries fewer than twenty passengers on the average, or 9000 pounds of vehicle for each passenger. Suppose a small automobile, carrying five, weighed 45,000 pounds. It would be in the modern railroad class, as regards transportation.

Nature contrives ingeniously to control "overproduction." Farmers around Wolfville, N. S., watching with despair the grasshoppers eating their crops, suddenly smiled, as flocks of sea gulls, arriving from far away, began eating the grasshoppers by the millions.

Similarly, not long ago, as Mr. Vernon Bailey, of the Agricultural Department, tells you, gulls flying over mountain ranges came to the rescue of northwestern farmers, watching field mice devouring their alfalfa. The gulls devoured the field mice, the crops were saved.

How do the gulls know of these feasts? Are certain gulls delegated to fly in all directions, seeking good news prospecting?

Doctor McKinley of the George Washington School of Medicine and Doctor Soule of the University of Michigan School of Medicine have isolated and "cultivated outside of the human body" germs that cause leprosy, once the most dreaded of all diseases, now unimportant compared with cancer, tuberculosis, sleeping sickness, heart disease and others.

Experiments on two species of monkeys, their blood and tissue closely resembling that of their alleged human "cousins," have demonstrated the success of the leprosy experiment.

The next step, perhaps, will be immunization through vaccination, and cure.

Doctors announce that the most important work of medical science, today, is learning how to prevent rather than how to cure diseases.

The new born human being a hundred years hence may start with a dozen or more "immunizations" implanted in his blood.

The Bible tells us that man is made a little lower than the angels. Exceptionally bad samples seem to be considerably lower.

A kind-hearted collector for a milk business, sympathizing with a poor beggar, bought him a hearty meal, revealing the fact that he carried money with him. The next day the same beggar with a friend waylaid the kind-hearted collector, beat him dangerously and took $88 from him.

A citizen held up by a young man was robbed of $18 was told:

"Thanks, that will help me through college."

General Hugh Johnson, President Roosevelt's "industrial director," hopes and expects to have four million men, one-third of the country's idle, back to work not later than next October. The factory payroll and employment for May on courage the belief that General Johnson's hope will be realized.

Carmel May Have New City Building

To take advantage of the Industrial Recovery act, Carmel will probably make application to the government for help in building a new city hall. The subject was proposed at the council meeting last week and a meeting was scheduled for Wednesday night of this week when the aldermen should hear a report from Mayor Catlin who was appointed as a committee of one to look into three propositions, namely: building a complete sewer system; construction of a retaining wall on the beach, and the erection of a new city hall.

Mayor Catlin told the Carmel Sun editor that he had found the first item came under the jurisdiction of the Carmel Sanitary board; that the people of the city as a whole do not wish a retaining wall along the beach, but that the building of the city hall was meeting with almost unanimous approval of all those with whom he has talked.

The building of this hall will be an excellent thing from many angles, thinks the mayor.

The first reason for this step is the great need for such a building according to Mr. Catlin. The present rooms used for the city are inadequate, the offices being much too small. Second, the city owns costly fire fighting apparatus and at present this has to be housed in a wooden structure also inadequate in many lines. Third, the cost of taking all prisoners to the jail at Monterey would be eliminated with the building of a jail section in the city hall. Fourth, the price of a location, cost of material and of labor will never be lower. Fifth, the construction work will take care of the unemployed and put money into circulation to help in the economic recovery of the nation.

To secure this federal aid, it will be necessary for the city, in this instance, to vote bonds of $75,000. These bonds will be turned over to the treasury department and the government will issue currency against them which amortizes and pays off at less than five per cent a year.

In the case of the work taking care of those otherwise unemployed, the president may make to the city a gift of 30 per cent of the whole.

"I believe we can put this project through with great profit to the city," said Mr. Catlin, "with no considerable raise in taxes, and with no raise whatsoever after the sand dune bonds are retired within three years."

COMMUNITY GUILD WILL HAVE CARNIVAL BOOTH

The Ladies of the Community church will have the booth at the street fair where they will sell all sorts of noise makers, confetti, and other things usually found at carnivals.

Pirates Will Invade Carmel Saturday

By Winsor Josselyn
"Pirates Ahoy!" Carmel will ring with this cry. A seashore town, it has seen bootleggers, dope runners and Chinese smugglers—and now pirates.

What's more, it invites the whole region to see its pirates, specifying only one restriction: Wait until the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of July and come to the Forest Theatre.

"The Pirates of Penzance" of course. And are they pirates? With rthur Gunderson directing the music, and Victor Kearney directing the acting, you're going to see the last word in pirates.

Among the leaders of the sea outlaws will be J. Rosslyn Jones, Ray Kocher, Menno Schouten, David Matzke, Lucian Jones and so on and on, and there will be ladies, too, such as Anna May Baer, Kathleen Murphy, Marie de Riemer and other excellent fair ones.

The older onlookers at this bloodthirsty roundup will spot it instantly as a Gilbert and Sullivan show, and will say that it's a worthy companion of "Pinafore" and "The Mikado" and all the rest of these gentlemen's noble musical comedies. Also that it was first produced in this country in December 1873 and some there will recall sleighing through New York streets to see it. For the younger patrons who've never seen it, a treat is in store, a treat stronger by many times than the new government beer.

Co-operating with the Carmel Street Fair which howls into life on July First, "The Pirates of Penzance" will top the evening in a very brave manner, and you will not need to visit the mind-reading tent to discover that you belong right down in front with your hands all ready to applaud the lines and music.

Indeed, if you want to get that favorite seat you'd do well by going to the nearest ticket seller and getting a reservation today—now. Ticket sale is brisk, and you simply don't dare to miss the big event of the Carmel summer dramatic season.

SUNSET TRUSTEES MAKE NEW BUDGET

A reduction of 37 per cent was made by the trustees of the Sunset school at their meeting last week. The savings come principally from a lowering of salaries and a cutting down of supplies. The really good feature, however, is the assurance that there will be no let-down in the standards of the school.

The sum which the district must raise amounts to $13,393, and must be secured from an assessed valuation of $5,549,425, less ten per cent, or $4,994,482.

Another change in the schedule for this year is the letting of the contracts to furnish supplies to the local people. It was the idea heretofore that these things had to be purchased from a central supply house in Salinas.

Street Fair to Open At 4:30 Saturday

Everything is all set for the big Street Fair which will open Saturday afternoon at 4:30 and will continue on through the next few hours.

And what a setting. Everyone who drives in will see before they reach town the preparations made for handling the huge crowd who will come to play with Carmel. There'll be no door looks Saturday. Everybody will be out for a good time. And one might as well be, for the merriment will be infectious.

Carnival, barbecue, county fair, home coming, family reunion, all the good times rolled into one will be found at Carmel's Street Fair Saturday.

Don't miss it. It will be the experience of a life-time.

CARMEL ARTISTS WILL HOLD EXHIBITION

The Carmel Art association will hold its annual summer exhibition July 17 to August 5, inclusive.

Two paintings may be submitted to the jury, only one of which may be hung.

According to instructions from Miss Culbertson, corresponding secretary, pictures should be sent to the Denny-Watrous gallery not later than Saturday, July 15. No hanging fee is required.

A reception for the artists and their friends will be held Sunday, July 23, from 3 to 5.

FIRST CONCERT OF SEASON DRAWS LARGE CROWD

Their violins talked. They told of genius, ambition, long hours of practice and that something which drives men on to do things, those violins of Alphonse Onnou, Laurent Halleux, Robert Maas and Germain Provost, the Pro Arte string quartet of Brussels at their concert presented Tuesday evening at Sunset school.

The large auditorium was filled with an appreciative audience and the musicians received encore after encore. Haydn, Tansman and Beethoven, as well as Mozart were interpreted with exquisite feeling.

This was the first concert of the summer season and the Carmel Music Society is delighted with the attendance and the enthusiasm shown.

The Pro Artes will be here again July 11th and, if possible, there will be an even larger crowd present on that date.

REGULAR MEETING OF BOARD IS POSTPONED

On account of the regular meeting of the Sunset School trustees falling on the night of July 4th, the date has been postponed until Thursday, July 6th.

Interesting Things About Carmel-by-the-Sea

HENRY COWELL'S MUSIC TALKS A TREAT

Can you imagine having to learn 32,000 scales, you who study music? Still, if you were in East India and wished to be a teacher, you would not be expected to know more than 550, and what's 550 between friends?

Anyway, Henry Cowell told his interested audience last Saturday night at the Denny-Watrous gallery all about the music of East India and played some of the records brought from that country. It must have been some task to obtain those records since only the serious minded are supposed to be allowed to listen to high class music—masters will play only before masters.

Of these mysterious scales there is one for each hour, one for each day, year, month and every imaginable occasion. Mr. Cowell said that one he wished to hear very much was denied him since the musicians would play it only at 4 a. m. Only the vilest person would play a scale, or raga as they call it, out of its own season.

Mr. Cowell told of an amusing instance of Stowkowsky, who asked to listen to the music of the masters of East India. He was firmly informed that after they had watched him for three months they would decide whether he was serious minded enough to hear them. No amount of his credentials as a musician won him the favor.

Another difference between their music and ours is that their drummers are considered the most important members of the orchestra as it is they who sustain the monotonous tone without which East Indian music just wouldn't be music.

If I knew how to spell it I'd tell you what they call music made by striking with a steel hammer upon porcelain vases, or in some instances, small metal weights.

Some more of the interesting lights were that the drums were tuned so that each one makes a different tone, and they are played with the fingers. Some of the most marvelous instruments in the world are made in that country; there are masculine and feminine scales, as well as scales for all the emotions, such as love, hatred, joy, sadness, etc.; the sitar, pronounced to rhyme with guitar is a favorite instrument and is made from a gourd and light weight wood; stretched with strings; they have an instrument resembling the violin, called the esraj.

And to think we are supposed to know only two scales! How perfectly simple.—E.F.B.

CARMEL VISITOR TELLS OF RUSSIAN EXPERIENCES

Among the interesting visitors Carmel is entertaining this summer is Madame Barry Orlova, who is spending two months here with her sister Mrs. Gertrude Douglas and Mrs. Douglas' daughter Miss Eugenie Douglas in the Short guest house on Carmelo.

Mme. Orlova is internationally known as a lyric tragedienne, and has played all of the lyric dramatic classics such as Francesca da Rimini, Monna Vanna and Shakespearean roles. She has played with Sir Beerholm Tree in London, and has also given lyric recitals of Oriental poetry in the great drawing rooms of London, Vienna, Paris and St. Petersburg.

At present Mme. Orlova is resting for two months in Carmel before going on with a world lecture tour for the Bahai order, which has a plan for peace and for the new world order.

Having lived in Russia during the years of the war, the wife of Col. Nicholas, of the Cossacks, Mme. Orlova has a wonderful fund of fascinating stories. She tells an amusing experience of going to tea at the home of the monk Rasputin, fully expecting to be poisoned, as all of her intimate friends were doing their best to poison him.

"I hesitated to go," said Mme. Orlova, "as I did not wish to go down in history as having died with Rasputin, and I was certain that this would be the day when he would be poisoned. During tea my friend the Princess Marie Borisovna urged me in English to eat the cake. I hesitated, toying with it for politeness' sake.

She finally leaned across the table and asked Rasputin who had made his cake. He replied, "She made it, Marcia."

I finally nibbled some of the cake, and when we got outside I told my friend that if there was anything in mental science I was a dead woman, for I could feel the poison at work. She answered me by saying that it was not every day that one could eat a cake baked by an Empress.

I realized then, that Marcia was the Empress, and was horrified at Rasputin's effrontery in referring to her in such fashion, for Marcia is to the name Alexandra as Mag is to Margaret."—M.M.M.

STELLA'S STORE HAS INTERESTING HISTORY

Did you know that the history of the beginning of some of Carmel's business houses reads like a "Once upon a time" story? Back in 1914, what is now known as Stella's Dry Goods store, had its beginnings in a dreammaking shop owned and operated by Miss Stella Guichard. Miss Guichard carried dreammaking accessories and kept her shop open during the afternoons. At that time there was only the beginning of what is now such a beautiful little city, with none of the picturesque shops we have today. The dream store, (one says "the" since there was but one) a small store run by Dr. Beck was open only when Dr. Beck was not out calling on his patients. And from that closed dream store was born the notion counter at Stella's where now one can find anything from a button hook, down (or up). The story goes that one morning a chauffeur who was staying at Pine Inn came to Miss Guichard with hair standing on end, frantically seeking a comb. She told him to go to the drug store. "I can't," he told her, "the store is closed."

Stella took pity on the young man and lent him her own comb and when he had finished with it, he asked for a toothbrush. Miss Guichard drew the line there but when the salesman next put in appearance, he got an order for combs and toothbrushes. And still another time, a golfer came begging for a darning. No darners in stock, but they located an old light bulb and he went on his way rejoicing that he would be able to darn his woolen socks and get out on the links. And so the stock has grown, not always in such slow proportions but sometimes by the addition of a whole department at once.

In those days all the stores were given either a French or Spanish name, and Stella, to fall into line, called hers "L'Acomodation." But, alas, too many people took the name literally, and she changed to the present one, being the first to use her Christian name.

And here's another striking thing, Stella's isn't owned by Stella any more nor has it been for the past five years, when it was purchased by her sister, Mrs. J. B. McGrury.

But you can still play safe by going to Stella's first.—E.F.B.

M. DE NEALE MORGAN SHOW AT GALLERY

An exhibit of oils by M. De Neale Morgan, which is of outstanding interest is now being shown at the Denny-Watrous Gallery. Wildflowers of the surrounding countryside are the keynote of these paintings, a different subject from the sand dunes and cypress trees which Miss Morgan does so beautifully, and for which she is best known.

One canvas of particular beauty is the scene of a deserted farm house on the Salinas road, with the surrounding ground simply covered with poppies and lupin.

Miss Morgan's work shows continued progress, and her most recent canvasses have changed so in feeling from her early work that it would be difficult to realize that the same personality created them.

Miss Morgan has received many honors in her work, and is listed among the great women painters of the country. She is integrally a part of Carmel, and has for years helped to spread the fame of Carmel-by-the-Sea as an artists' abode.

The merits of the Wagner bill, permitting the trade associations to adopt a minimum wage scale, and to standardize the hours, and profits, were discussed at the executive board meeting of the master painters of the state, held at Pine Inn Saturday afternoon and evening.

Seventy-two members were present, and received much pleasure and information from the meeting. The Foster Glee club entertained with music.

A pleasant surprise was the presence of the international president, Arthur S. Grant, who gave a talk filled with gripping facts.

visit the hospital where his son and daughter-in-law were taken.

CARMEL BOY RECEIVES HONOR WITH MARINES

One of Carmel's sons recently received recognition when Albert Coffey with the Marines at Quantico, Va., won eighth place in a rifle meet and received a silver medal from the Eastern Division, and won second place in a Marine Corps rifle meet, also receiving a silver medal. For these two feats he was given a gold medal and will be sent to Wakefield, Mass., for special training and will now have the title of "distinguished marksman."

This is Albert's fifth year in the marine corps, and his interest in shooting began when he was a boy in Carmel.

Former honors came to Coffey when in China he was winner in a rifle meet and as a reward was sent back to the United States a year earlier than he otherwise would have been.

Mr. Coffey is a brother of Mrs. E. R. Douglas and Mrs. Art Hilbert of Carmel.

COUPLE ON WAY HERE TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Many people came to Carmel to live, but it was left to a young San Francisco couple to plan to come here to die.

On reading their suicide notes, one deeply regrets they did not first try living here, where they would undoubtedly have made a great hit. The article from Monday morning's Examiner follows:

Fate, acting through a San Carlos policeman, early yesterday thwarted an elaborately conceived pact by which a young couple, married two months, had planned to bring their lives to a dramatic close.

They are Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, formerly of San Francisco who have been living in Hollywood since their marriage here in April. He is 23. She is 19.

Jobless and penniless, they decided last week that life held nothing more for them. They laid careful plans for their last days and were following them faithfully when policeman John Gravano of San Carlos interrupted.

Stole Car
Taylor had stolen an automobile in Hollywood. They drove to San Francisco, where, Saturday, they visited Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Bonaparte, 825 Van Ness avenue.

Then their arrangements called for a drive back to Carmel, where, at the edge of one of the famous cliffs, they were to swallow poison, and fling themselves into the breakers below.

They had purchased the poison with their last money and were on their way to Carmel when Gravano stepped in. He was attracted to their car because, with lights out, it was moving slowly through San Carlos.

Sought Gasoline
Taylor explained later he was looking for an automobile from which he might steal gasoline sufficient to carry them on to Carmel. But Gravano arrested him for driving without lights.

A search revealed the poison and two suicide notes, and their story came out.

The notes, unsigned, were penned in a notebook. One said in part: "Darling of My Heart, Wednesday night will be our last night on this cruel and wicked planet and from then we will live true life, You and I, my whole life will be gone to the most beautiful of planets. There our lives shall be one golden moment, beautiful moment after another. Our lives and souls shall blossom forth in all their soft, exquisite beauty and we shall stroll hand in hand through that beautiful path of love until we stand humbly before our Maker and Master."

Note to Mother
In a note addressed to his mother in Hollywood, Taylor gave directions for recovering two suitcases from Hollywood depot, said he and his bride had no desire to live any longer and explained.

"Our love is not physically as many think. It is pure soul love and we are both anxious to leave this earth so that we may fulfill the desire of our heart."

On another page was a notation about a certain poison and its effects.

The Taylors were held in jail at Redwood City for Los Angeles authorities.

DOG SENDS TRAFFIC OFFICER INTO DITCH

Traffic Officer Charles Guth narrowly escaped serious injury last week, when Chink, dog belonging to M. J. Murphy ran out barking in front of Guth's motorbike, causing him to swerve into a ditch to avoid hitting the animal.

Guth was uninjured, but his machine was damaged sufficiently to require repairs.

CARMEL NOW HAS NEW SHOP OF ANTIQUES

Carmel will soon be known as a trading center for those who wish to purchase antiques and the new shop to be added to this line is that opened this week in La Rambla building on Lincoln, near Ocean, next door to Heron's Bookshop.

The proprietors, Mrs. Wick W. Parsons and daughter, Mary Louise Parsons, come from Fresno, where they have been dealing in their line of merchandise for the past seven years. They have some beautiful pieces of furniture, silver, and glassware on hand and through the columns of Carmel Sun are asking those who appreciate these beautiful things to call and see them.

Mrs. Parsons and Miss Parsons said they would carry also a few pieces of modern furniture, especially designed and hand made.

Carmel people hope the Parsons family will prosper and will like Carmel so much they will never leave.

DOG STRUCK BY CAR. OWNER MAKES COMPLAINT

As Lawrence Blum was exercising his dog last Saturday morning, the animal was struck by a car driven by Mr. Toland, who, alleges Blum, refused to stop. He was chased, and finally stopped by Blum, who made him drive the animal to a veterinary, where it was discovered that the animal had a broken shoulder.

Blum insists that the accident was avoidable, and intends to swear to a complaint against Toland.

CARMEL COMMUNITY CHURCH

Being the second of a series of summer sermons at the Carmel Community church, the Rev. T. Harold Grimshaw will take for his subject on Sunday morning next, "Christ's Holy Catholic Church." This is a plea for devotion to an organism rather than an organization. It will be interesting and stimulating to thought. Visitors to and residents of Carmel are cordially invited.

CARMEL PISTOL CLUB FIRES HEAVY SCHEDULE

The past month has been a busy one for the Carmel Pistol club and a good deal of powder has been burned at their range in Hatton Fields. In the middle of May they came out decidedly second best against a team from the Anaconda Pistol club, Anaconda, Mont., scoring 1028 against 1079 out of 1250 in a match fired at twenty yards by artificial light, but staged a snappy come-back by tying with a team from the Olympic Rifle and Pistol club of San Francisco both shooting a score of 1070. For several years the Olympic club has turned out teams that were among the best five in the United States so that even a tie is a good deal of satisfaction to the local organization.

The team shooting against the Anaconda club consisted of D. S. Ball scoring 214, Hatton Martin 213, Jim Williams 201, Chas. Guth 200 and G. L. Wood, Jr., and the one that shot against the Olympic club of G. L. Wood, Jr., 220; Hatton Martin 220, Jim Williams 218, C. B. Tarr 206 and Chas Guth 206.

The Carmel club has not confined itself entirely to slow fire. Mr. O. H. Ford the nationally famous trap shot manager of the Del Monte Gun club offered a trophy consisting of a copper tray, pitcher, and four mugs to be competed for by members of the club in other than slow fire matches. In the semi-finals Cooper Anderson, C. B. Tarr, Haskell Warren, Jim Williams and G. L. Wood, Jr., qualified with scores ranging from 162 to 187 with four strings of five shots each fired at twenty-five yards in twenty seconds at a bulls-eye three and a quarter inches in diameter, G. L. Wood, Jr. winning the finals Sunday.

In the month to come the tie with the Olympic club will be shot off, the Monthly Handicap shoot will be held, and the bi-annual match for the Flanders cup a perpetual trophy presented by Paul Flanders will be fired. rmG206.willbeheldwlr siteoffs

Mr. and Mrs. Ray De Yoe are entertaining as their guest Mrs. Margaret Jost, who is connected with the Extension division of the University of Oklahoma. The De Yoes are spending the summer at Las Ranchitas, in the Carmel Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Staniford had as their guests last week-end Mr. Staniford's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Staniford of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Don McRay of Los Angeles.

Miss Edith Cartledge, who has been living in the Carmel valley, moved to the Highlands last week. She has leased the Victorino place.

W. E. Mack and family drove up to Santa Rosa Saturday and visited until Sunday evening with relatives. Mr. Mack reports that country is being very beautiful at this time.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

L. W. Taylor, former Kern County farm adviser and now in the United States consular service, has been assigned to a post in Copenhagen, Denmark. Bakersfield friends were advised recently.

Fowler, bone dry for twenty-five years following a 7 to 1 vote taken soon after the organization of the municipality, voted to permit the sale of beer here by a margin of six votes.

Establishment in California of a Federal camp for unemployed women similar to that recently opened at Bear Mountain, N. Y., is requested in a resolution adopted by the Los Angeles board of supervisors and forwarded to Secretary of Labor Perkins at Washington. After endorsing the idea of camps for unemployed women along the lines suggested by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, the resolution points out why the idea should be tried out in this state, stating there are in Los Angeles county alone 10,000 unemployed women who would benefit by the establishment of such a camp.

A new code of ethics regulating the hours of employment and fixing a minimum scale of wages was adopted at the annual convention of the California Pharmaceutical Association recently held at Long Beach. The association prescribed the maximum working day of employees at nine hours and ordered wage increases ranging from 10 to 50 per cent. Registered pharmacists would get a minimum of $25 a week and male clerks $22.50. Female clerks are to receive a minimum of $18 a week. Pharmacists are to sell goods at a retail profit of 33 1/3 per cent. Retail establishments under supervision of registered or licensed pharmacists were defined as the only legal outlets of the drug trade.

Governor Rolph's budget and special appropriations added to it by the legislature will total $250,407,865 for the coming biennium, it was revealed in final check-up of measures acted upon in the bill-signing period just ended. The budget itself, somewhat amended in its passage through the legislature, calls for a total outlay of $246,900,000 during 1933-35. Net special appropriation, $14,565, excluding items already included in the state budget bill, were listed by fiscal officers as aggregating $3,549,831, of which $41,966 was cut by Governor Rolph's veto. The probable deficit for the 1933-35 period has been estimated at $43,000,000, but it was conceded in most quarters today that decreased in revenues from public utility corporations only added materially to the potential shortage. Finding at least this $43,000,000 and effecting a balanced budget constitute major problems which will face the legislature when it reconvenes July 17.

PIANO QUARTET WILL REHEARSE NEXT MONDAY

The piano quartet did not meet for practice last Monday night, and several people who came to hear them were disappointed. One should bear in mind that the quartet meets every Monday night, except those Mondays preceding concerts. There will be a rehearsal next Monday night but none July 10.

The Peninsula orchestra rehearses every Sunday night.

MAN LOSES CONTROL OF CAR; CRASHES TREE

Just as he neared the top of the hill at Ocean Avenue and Torres street, a motorist last week suffered a heart attack, and his car, out of control, crashed downhill into a tree.

Charles Guth and Terry Martin happened to see the accident, and when they arrived at the scene, found the man miraculously uninjured, but still in a daze, and unaware of what had occurred.

THREE GIRLS AND BOY ALL DOING NICELY

Three girls and a boy were born to Dinky Bathen the 20th of May and what fine youngsters they have grown to be. They have been named: Sally Ann, Betty, Bimbee and Tam O'Shanter. These little Scotties have a pedigree a mile long and live up to what is expected of them. Mrs. Bathen is particularly enthusiastic about Tam, as she thinks he will grow up to be a prize winner.

Kathleen Farlow, noted violinist, will arrive in Carmel Saturday to spend the next two months here.

The first of the regular Sunday night tea dances at the Beach club in Pebble Beach was held last Sunday, and was very successful. Music continued throughout the evening, while a buffet supper was served.

PAUL FLEAGEL TO MAKE SKETCHES FOR FAIR

A chance to have a sketch made by that clever young artist Paul Fleagel, with the proceeds going to sweet charity, will be yours this week-end, when Fleagel will donate his services and time to the Street Fair.

These sketches of Fleagel's are very fine, and the artist has the knack of catching the predominant expression, and makes a picture that is fine and true.

FOREIGN FEATURE FILM FOR CARMEL THEATRE

Direct from the Fifth Avenue Theatre in New York comes the latest thrill for Carmel, in the guise of a French talking film, "Paris-Mediterranee", which will show Wednesday afternoon, July 11th, and again at midnight on the same day, at the Carmel Theatre.

The showing has been made possible through arrangements with the Golden State interests, and the International Film Institute of California.

With subtitles in English for those who do not understand French, the picture will be understandable to everyone, and for those who number a knowledge of the French language among their accomplishments, it will be an exciting event.

Should the attendance prove large, more of these foreign films will be shown from time to time, so if you are interested in obtaining entertainment that is usually to be found only in the large cities and in having it right here in Carmel, attend the film, and tell your friends about it.

INDIAN TEXTILES ON DISPLAY AT LOCAL SHOP

Indian blankets which are part of the collection of Mrs. Nelly Murphy Montague, who lectured on early American textiles in the balcony room of Tilly Polak's shop last Friday, are still on display there, as there has been such a widespread interest in the collection.

Mrs. Montague's talk on Friday was the first of a series which will be given monthly during the summer. Thoroughly familiar with her subject, Mrs. Montague described not only the intricate workmanship, but the significance and interrelation of the tribal arts and the races which created them.

The rugs and blankets on display are beautiful, with colorings as mellow and rare as fine old oriental rugs.

LUNCHEON FOR EIGHT AT COST OF DOLLAR

To secure money for the Community church, Mrs. Mabel Turner gave the first of what will probably be a series of luncheons of the kind, at her cottage, Crestview, on Carmel Point Monday.

Mrs. Turner's guests were delighted with the following menu, which Mrs. Turner said, cost 99 cents for the entire meal.

Fruit cocktail of bananas, pineapple and oranges; molded spinach-beet salad; macaroni and sausage in casserole, tomato aspic; bread, butter and coffee.

The guests each gave a menu which they were sure could be served at the same price. Those who enjoyed the occasion were Mesdames E. L. Taylor, Clara Hinds, Clara Beller, Charlotte Morgan and Lillie Hanson and the Misses Pierce and Miss Curtis.

WHEAT PRICES ARE UP; FLOUR PRICES FOLLOW

George Wishart of the Dolores Bakery has received word of another 20 per cent raise in the price of flour to take place Monday. Mr. Wishart states that since the government has taken over the helm, the price of wheat has raised from 38 to 91 1/2 cents a bushel.

"IMAGINARY INVALID" AT COMMUNITY PLAYERS

"HYPOCHONDRIA"—a disease attended with extreme melancholy, and anxiety respecting one's state of health." (Webster's dictionary.)

It is not easy to imagine a local actor more suitably cast in the role of the hypochondriac, Argan, than J. Rosslyn Jones, who has the title role in the Carmel Players' production of "The Imaginary Invalid." Moliere's lively comedy to be given July 6, 7 and 8 at the Playhouse. Part of the subtlety of the play depends on the contradiction of appearance and manner. Mr. Jones fairly shines with health and good-humor, his voice is rich and strong, telling of years of good living and enjoyment of the world. Combine these natural qualities with the amusing lines written by the Frenchman—and there is comedy indeed. The play is directed by Kit Cooke, assisted by Frederick Burt.

The story of the man who imagined himself always at the point of death, who became a slave to the doctors and their endless doses of pills and powders, who even tried to marry his daughter to a physician so that he might always have medical attention close at hand, (and practice a bit of French economy, perhaps, in the matter of doctor's bills!) is told in Moliere's best manner. It was his last play and many critics consider it his best. It may be that the pungency of the situations is due to the more than academic interest the playwright felt: he himself was a victim of the medicines of the seventeenth century. This was his last impudent gesture before he died.

In the supporting cast with Mr. Jones are James G. Darling as Beralde, Ruth Thompson as Beline, Nancy Thompson as Angeli, Ruth Pinkham as Toinette, Millard Pierson as Mr. Diafoirus, Leon Wilson as Thomas Diafoirus, Philip Remer as Cleante, Tom Tooker as Mr. Purgon, James Thoburn as Mr. de Bonnefoi, Jimmy Darling as Mr. Fluerant and Mary Jane Dawson as Louison.

KIDDIES, WATCH FOR BALLOON SATURDAY

Some youngster is going to be made happy Saturday if he or she is lucky enough to get the balloon.

You don't know about the balloon? Surely you have heard that Carmel's Street Fair will be opened at four thirty Saturday afternoon by an astrologer from Mount Carmel observatory, who will mount out of Carmel's high buildings and with the aid of the star rays will release a balloon.

This balloon is expected to float obligingly toward some youngster who will be interested in a brand new pair of roller skates for it will be weighted with a key which will open a chest wherein will repose the coveted prize.

Be on hand by 4:30 and have your running shoes on, or perhaps your seven-league boots.
